Teachers are paid to the end of their scholastic year—Sist instant—and the disputed month of March is included, the apparent duplication having been satisfactority explained to the auditor. It appears that while a requisition for $9,000 for teachers' salaries for the month of March had been presented, no money had been drawn, though about fifty teachers were paid by passing their ealary bells in payment of taxes to parties about to pay taxes. The school treasurer appears to have disbursed for teachers' salaries every dollar received for that purpose. He also claims that all his reports have been made, except for the last six months.
